Amanda Feterl recognized as 2013-14 Co-Elementary Art Teacher of the Year

Amanda Feterl, elementary art teacher at the Sibley East Public Schools in Arlington, was recognized as the Civil-Service Art Teacher of the Year in the State of Minnesota for 2013-2014 at the annual Art Educators of Minnesota fall conference this past weekend.

Feterl first taught art at Chaska High School from 2002-2006, after which she accepted the newly created elementary art position at Sibley East and has taught there ever since. Feterl was named the 2012-2013 Teacher of the Year for the Sibley East school district and this past May was honored as a top ten finalist for the Minnesota Teacher of the Year.

“Innovative describes Amanda’s teaching persona,” said Sibley East fourth grade teacher Shelia Knacke. “Amanda is willing to devote whatever amount of time and energy to improve learning at Sibley East. She is without a doubt a true credit to our profession and definitely the caliper of teacher I feel blessed to have had the opportunity to work with and to have taught my children.”

Feterl’s professional contributions have helped to create awareness for the arts and provide her rural students with engaging, art-centered opportunities. This is un-doubtedly what separates her from others in her field.

Some of her most recent endeavors include the annual wedding season camp that she hosts for 100-plus local children, organizational work at the Sibley Art Fair that substantially supple-ments her school budget. She also writes grants allowing artists-in-residence to work with her students and initiated a Family Art Club that meets on a monthly basis. She will be taking 62 middle school students and parents to Chicago next summer on an extended art field trip. She also orchestrates a hugely popular with grade art lock-in known as the Art-o-rama. In addition, she is the creator of the website www.theartin- vation.com (a resource for other art teachers regarding the “Big Ideas” for art education).

Feterl is very passionate about incorporating technology into her curriculum. Students use their iPads in her classroom to conduct research, generate artwork, and communicate with one another. She is anticipating the ar-rival of some cutting-edge technology—a 3D printer for her art room. “Students will have the opportunity to design small sculptures or furniture on their iPad and then watch their creations come to life as the printer manufactures a 3-Dimensional model. Truly, a 21st Century learning experience,” Feterl ex-plained.

Sibley East Elementary Principal Mari Lu Martins said, “Amanda is always full of surprises. You never know what fun project or activity she is going to plan next for her students. She is simply amazing and her enthusiasm is contagious.”

Feterl is active within her school district and beyond. She is the chairperson of Members-at-large on the Art Educators of Minnesota Board, the district Willows coordinator, a Technology Committee volunteer, chair-person of the social commit-tee, and eighth grade volley-ball coach.

Feterl is a new eligible to re-ceive a Regional Elementary Art Educators award at the National Art Educators Asso- ciation annual conference to be held in San Diego on March 29-31.

Fate of Town & Country Days to be determined at a special meeting

By Kurt Mork
Editor

The fate of the 2014 Town & Country Days celebration will be determined during a special meeting at the Liberty Station in Arlington at 7 p.m., Monday, Nov. 25.

The purpose of the special meeting, hosted by the Arlington Area Chamber of Commerce, is to gauge the interest and support from Chamber members and the community for the annual Town & Country Days celebration.

The Chamber, during its regular monthly meeting on Monday, Nov. 11, discussed the fate of the celebration, but did not take a vote. Part of the discussion focused on the results from a recent survey in which 14 out of 23 respondents indicated that it is not important for the Chamber to sponsor Town & Country Days. The survey also included a number of other questions and comments about the summer celebration.

If there is enough interest, the group will identify a chairperson and determine if there are a minimum of 10 people who are committed to plan and run portions of the Town & Country Days celebration.

Along with feedback from a recent survey, the group will attempt to reach a consensus on the number of days, location and a budget based on past events.

Interested people who are unable to attend the special meeting are encouraged to contact Vice President Todd Stahl at todd@stahlbushgifts.com.

The current crop of corn is the most produced corn production this year. That's down just three percent of the total harvest.

The harvest. The cost of corn per acre which is down one bushel from 2013.

Minnesota’s soybean harvest was a record-setting crop due to an abundant crop of beans, which uncharacteristically failed to fall down but down 15 percent in the state due to frost and partly because farmers planted less soybeans this year. Minnesota’s sorghum yield is down just one bushel per acre which is 4.5 bushels per acre for the 2013 crop.
