Sunny run sheds light on mental health awareness

Nearly 400 runners and walkers took to the streets of Glencoe on Saturday, May 2 for the inaugural Break the Stigma 5K run/Walk. The event navigated a course around the northwest part of town both beginning and ending at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church on a sunny morning that matched the mood of its participants.

Glencoe resident Michelle Gomez and her “best friend” Michelle Dunbar, two of the co-organizers of the event, thought up the idea of holding a local run/walk after participating in a 5K in support of suicide prevention.

“Mental health issues are near and dear to both Marilyn and me,” Gomez said. “I am living proof that one can never tell who may live with mental illness. The stigma prevents many people from getting proper help. Mental illness can be such a silent enemy. The sooner people bring their ill-being into the light, my hope is (that’s) the sooner they can find healthy ways to re-frame some of the symptoms.”

To this end, she set about contacting Julio Salazar, who is running across the United States, to see if he would be willing to partner with the local effort, and what began as a plan for what Gomez described as a “simple event” continued to expand.

Blog and Facebook posts, originally set up by Stephanie Boste, helped spread the word and what was hoped to be an initial turnout of around 200 people became twice that.

“We are ecstatic with the participation,” Gomez said. “I would venture to guess that because of the May 2 event someone found the courage to begin the first steps towards getting help and if that is the case than we would claim the event a bigger success than we imagined.”

She said that funds raised through the run/walk would assist in the organization of support group that is to begin regular meetings at the Glencoe Hospital.

“This group is geared towards anyone suffering a mental illness,” Gomez added.

The event navigated a course around the streets of Glencoe on Saturday, May 2. Nearly 400 runners and walkers took to the streets of Glencoe on Saturday, May 2. It’s been a great spring so far for the Glencoe-Silver Lake trapshooting team. Numbers are up, both score-wise and in participation, and coach Doug Fegley could not be happier.

“We’re really getting things on track,” he said. “Things are going real well.”

The Panthers are in the midst of their 2015 season. The squad competes at the Worldsport Game Protective League, and the clubfence is fuller than ever this season.

Fifty-two participants joined up this spring, including 13 girls. Those numbers are up from the program’s inception in 2013, which featured 10 boys and three girls.

In 2014, there were 45 total participants, seven of which were female. This year’s team features 12 seniors and 10 seventh-graders.

“It’s growing and growing,” Fegley said. “There’s 8355 kids in Minnesota now participating, up from 6920 last year. It’s getting huge.”

Competition does not feature a traditional head-to-head format, such as baseball or softball, or even a multi-team event such as golf or track and field. Rather, the Panthers are the only team in attendance, and each participant accumulates their own score, which also factors into the overall team tally. Those scores are reported to the Minnesota State High School Clay Target League, which crowns regular-season champions.

This season, GSL competed in Class 4A, as part of an eight-team “Conference Four.” The conference counts in membership from all over the state, including Clearbrook, Brainerd, Sauk Rapids, Marshall, McGregor, Alexandria, Zimmerman and McGregor-Aitkin-Weech in addition to the Panthers.

Each participant’s score is determined by the number of clay targets that are hit out of 50 total attempts. There are two rounds of competition, in which each participant fires six shots from one of five alt
